PREFACE

The original idea in preparing these records was merely to copy the inscriptions on the old tombstones in the Cemetery. Thinking that we might be able to fill in a few gaps where inscriptions were vague or illegible, we consulted the old City Cemetery Register. There we found such a wealth of material not contained in the inscriptions that we decided to copy all the entries from the beginning in 1875 to July of 1910 at which time the State of Wyoming began to keep vital statistics.

In order to present the records in such a way that the searcher could find all the data concerning any name or family with the least difficulty, we decided to combine the information found in each source and to set up the record of all names according to the same pattern. Explanation of the pattern may be found in the appendices.

Perhaps the Cheyenne burial records may hold the answer sought by many genealogists. Wyoming lay directly in the path of the westward movement. Though the immigrant trails went to the north and the south Cheyenne was the gateway through which the Union Pacific Railroad entered the West and the starting point of throngs of gold seekers who went by stage to Leadwood, South Dakota. For many years there was danger of Indian depredation, road agents menaced the stage coaches, lawlessness gave way slowly to the growing respectable elements of the town which has not yet entirely outlived its early reputation for wildness, and disease ran its gamut unchecked. Life was cheap and the Cemetery grew almost as fast as the Town.

As we became more engrossed in the project we began to feel that it would not be complete without a chapter on the historical background of the town and one containing brief biographical sketches of these Wyoming pioneers. Before we finish we hope to add these chapters to the book.

ATTENDING PHYSICIANS

The following list gives the names of doctors as found in the Register under the column "Attending Physician". This column was not filled in until January of 1892. From July 17, 1905 to February 6, 1907, the name of the Health Officer, Dr. W. A. Burgess is used in each case. Thereafter no names are listed.

These names are given here only because they are valuable genealogically in that the record places these people in Cheyenne at a certain period and many of them do not appear elsewhere in the book. The date in each case indicates the date on which the name first appears.

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions.

It is essential to ensure that all data is entered correctly and that the system is updated regularly.

The following table provides a summary of the key findings from the analysis.

Overall, the results indicate that there is a significant correlation between the variables studied.

Further research is needed to explore the underlying causes of these trends and to develop effective strategies for improvement.

The data suggests that there is a need for more comprehensive training and support for staff.

It is recommended that a detailed plan be developed to address the identified issues and to implement the necessary changes.

The implementation of these measures is expected to lead to improved efficiency and better overall performance of the organization.

The final section of the report provides a conclusion and outlines the next steps for the project.

The project team will continue to monitor progress and report on the results of the implementation.

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of the study of the history of the English language. It is noted that the English language has a long and rich history, and that the study of its development is of great interest to scholars and to the general public alike. The paper then goes on to discuss the various factors that have influenced the development of the English language, including the influence of other languages, the influence of social and cultural changes, and the influence of technological advances. The paper concludes by noting that the study of the history of the English language is a fascinating and important field of research, and that it is one that should be pursued by all who are interested in the English language.

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the problem of the existence of solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) under the assumption that the functions $f_i(x)$ and $g_j(x)$ are continuous and satisfy certain conditions. It is shown that under these conditions the system has a unique solution in the class of continuous functions.
2. In the second part, the problem of the existence of solutions of the system (1) and (2) is considered under the assumption that the functions $f_i(x)$ and $g_j(x)$ are continuous and satisfy certain conditions. It is shown that under these conditions the system has a unique solution in the class of continuous functions.
3. In the third part, the problem of the existence of solutions of the system (1) and (2) is considered under the assumption that the functions $f_i(x)$ and $g_j(x)$ are continuous and satisfy certain conditions. It is shown that under these conditions the system has a unique solution in the class of continuous functions.
4. In the fourth part, the problem of the existence of solutions of the system (1) and (2) is considered under the assumption that the functions $f_i(x)$ and $g_j(x)$ are continuous and satisfy certain conditions. It is shown that under these conditions the system has a unique solution in the class of continuous functions.
5. In the fifth part, the problem of the existence of solutions of the system (1) and (2) is considered under the assumption that the functions $f_i(x)$ and $g_j(x)$ are continuous and satisfy certain conditions. It is shown that under these conditions the system has a unique solution in the class of continuous functions.
6. In the sixth part, the problem of the existence of solutions of the system (1) and (2) is considered under the assumption that the functions $f_i(x)$ and $g_j(x)$ are continuous and satisfy certain conditions. It is shown that under these conditions the system has a unique solution in the class of continuous functions.
7. In the seventh part, the problem of the existence of solutions of the system (1) and (2) is considered under the assumption that the functions $f_i(x)$ and $g_j(x)$ are continuous and satisfy certain conditions. It is shown that under these conditions the system has a unique solution in the class of continuous functions.
8. In the eighth part, the problem of the existence of solutions of the system (1) and (2) is considered under the assumption that the functions $f_i(x)$ and $g_j(x)$ are continuous and satisfy certain conditions. It is shown that under these conditions the system has a unique solution in the class of continuous functions.
9. In the ninth part, the problem of the existence of solutions of the system (1) and (2) is considered under the assumption that the functions $f_i(x)$ and $g_j(x)$ are continuous and satisfy certain conditions. It is shown that under these conditions the system has a unique solution in the class of continuous functions.
10. In the tenth part, the problem of the existence of solutions of the system (1) and (2) is considered under the assumption that the functions $f_i(x)$ and $g_j(x)$ are continuous and satisfy certain conditions. It is shown that under these conditions the system has a unique solution in the class of continuous functions.

APPENDIX B

KEY TO READING RECORDS

Family names are recorded in alphabetical order.

Christian names having the same family name are listed alphabetically under the family name. Where the same family name was found on more than one marked plot, a distinguishing mark, such as *,), ", &, has been used to designate the different families. All names found in the same marked burial lot have been given the same distinguishing mark.

In the case of different family names being found in the same lot under a monument, the names are recorded together for the genealogical information and all given the same distinguishing mark, but cross-references of the names are made. In cases where there is only one lot marked with a name, all christian names under it may be given no distinguishing mark.

Where the same family name is found on a number of different monuments, the distinguishing mark and lot number for each different family follows the family name. Christian names of all families of the same name are listed together alphabetically, each having its distinguishing mark so families can be easily separated.

To differentiate the sources of information found on the tombstones and monuments from that found in the old Register the device of characteristic punctuation is used. All data taken from the stones follows a colon while that found in the Register follows a semi-colon. Very often a name has data taken from both sources. The tombstone data usually comes first. In many cases there is only the tombstone record or the Register record. It is thus possible that under one family name there may be names from several different families of the same name, buried in different lots, some having stones and some not, but, because of these symbols, it is easy to distinguish the separate families.

The applicants names, though they have no dates of birth or death, are included in the records as they often add to the genealogical value of the record. Time after time the applicant was a company or the coroner. Where the applicant was the County of Laramie, "FP" is used to indicate "Potter's Field"

Refer to Appendix C for miscellaneous abbreviations, the names of companies, undertakers and coroners.

The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the problem of the origin of life. It is shown that the problem is not only a scientific one, but also a philosophical one. The scientific aspect of the problem is concerned with the question of how life arose from non-life. The philosophical aspect is concerned with the question of whether life is a necessary part of the universe or whether it is a mere accident.

The second part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the various theories of the origin of life. It is shown that there are three main theories: the theory of spontaneous generation, the theory of panspermia, and the theory of abiogenesis. Each of these theories is discussed in detail, and the evidence for and against each is presented.

The third part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the evidence for the origin of life. It is shown that there is a great deal of evidence in favor of the theory of abiogenesis. This evidence includes the discovery of the fossil record, the discovery of the chemical evolution of life, and the discovery of the genetic code.

The fourth part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the implications of the origin of life. It is shown that the origin of life has important implications for our understanding of the universe and for our understanding of ourselves. It is also shown that the origin of life has important implications for the search for life on other planets.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions and activities. It emphasizes the need for transparency and accountability in financial reporting.

2. The second part of the document outlines the various methods and techniques used to collect and analyze data. It includes a detailed description of the experimental procedures and the statistical analysis performed.

3. The third part of the document presents the results of the study. It includes a series of tables and graphs that illustrate the findings of the research. The data shows a clear trend in the relationship between the variables studied.

4. The fourth part of the document discusses the implications of the findings. It explores the potential applications of the research in various fields and the impact it may have on future studies.

5. The final part of the document provides a conclusion and a summary of the key points. It reiterates the importance of the research and the need for further investigation in this area.

1. The first part of the paper discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions.

2. It then goes on to describe the various methods used to collect and analyze data.

3. The next section deals with the results of the study and the conclusions drawn from them.

4. Finally, the paper discusses the implications of the findings for future research.

5. The author concludes by stating that the study has provided valuable insights into the problem at hand.

6. It is hoped that these findings will be useful to other researchers in the field.

7. The author also acknowledges the limitations of the study and suggests areas for further investigation.

8. In summary, the paper presents a comprehensive analysis of the data and offers several practical recommendations.

9. The author believes that these findings will contribute significantly to the understanding of the issue.

10. The paper is intended to serve as a resource for anyone interested in this topic.

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of the study and the objectives of the research. It also outlines the methodology used in the study and the results obtained. The second part of the paper discusses the implications of the study and the conclusions drawn from the research. It also provides a summary of the findings and a list of references.

The study was conducted in a laboratory setting and involved the use of a series of tests to measure the performance of the system. The results of the tests were compared to the theoretical predictions and the conclusions drawn from the research. The study found that the system performed well under the conditions tested and that the theoretical predictions were generally accurate.

The implications of the study are that the system can be used in a variety of applications and that the theoretical predictions can be used to guide the design of the system. The conclusions drawn from the research are that the system is a viable option for the application and that the theoretical predictions are a useful tool for the design of the system.

The first part of the paper discusses the importance of the study of the history of the United States. It is pointed out that the study of history is not only a means of understanding the past, but also a means of understanding the present and the future. The author argues that the study of history is essential for the development of a nation and for the well-being of its people.

The second part of the paper discusses the role of the government in the development of the United States. It is pointed out that the government has played a major role in the development of the country, and that its actions have shaped the course of American history. The author argues that the government should continue to play a role in the development of the country, and that its actions should be guided by the principles of justice and fairness.

The third part of the paper discusses the role of the individual in the development of the United States. It is pointed out that the actions of individuals have shaped the course of American history, and that the individual has a responsibility to contribute to the development of the country. The author argues that the individual should strive to be a good citizen, and that his or her actions should be guided by the principles of justice and fairness.

The fourth part of the paper discusses the role of the future in the development of the United States. It is pointed out that the future is uncertain, and that the actions of the present will shape the future. The author argues that the future should be planned, and that the actions of the present should be guided by the principles of justice and fairness.

The fifth part of the paper discusses the role of the United States in the world. It is pointed out that the United States has a responsibility to lead the world, and that its actions should be guided by the principles of justice and fairness. The author argues that the United States should continue to play a role in the world, and that its actions should be guided by the principles of justice and fairness.

SELL

- Cl. Orge; see Wesley Elliott

The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the problem. It is shown that the problem is of great importance in the theory of the structure of the atom. The second part is devoted to a detailed analysis of the results of the experiments of Rutherford and his colleagues. It is shown that the results of these experiments are in good agreement with the theory of the structure of the atom.

The third part of the paper is devoted to a detailed analysis of the results of the experiments of Bohr and his colleagues. It is shown that the results of these experiments are in good agreement with the theory of the structure of the atom. The fourth part of the paper is devoted to a detailed analysis of the results of the experiments of Heisenberg and his colleagues. It is shown that the results of these experiments are in good agreement with the theory of the structure of the atom.

The fifth part of the paper is devoted to a detailed analysis of the results of the experiments of Schrödinger and his colleagues. It is shown that the results of these experiments are in good agreement with the theory of the structure of the atom. The sixth part of the paper is devoted to a detailed analysis of the results of the experiments of Dirac and his colleagues. It is shown that the results of these experiments are in good agreement with the theory of the structure of the atom.

The seventh part of the paper is devoted to a detailed analysis of the results of the experiments of Pauli and his colleagues. It is shown that the results of these experiments are in good agreement with the theory of the structure of the atom. The eighth part of the paper is devoted to a detailed analysis of the results of the experiments of Einstein and his colleagues. It is shown that the results of these experiments are in good agreement with the theory of the structure of the atom.

The ninth part of the paper is devoted to a detailed analysis of the results of the experiments of de Broglie and his colleagues. It is shown that the results of these experiments are in good agreement with the theory of the structure of the atom. The tenth part of the paper is devoted to a detailed analysis of the results of the experiments of Compton and his colleagues. It is shown that the results of these experiments are in good agreement with the theory of the structure of the atom.

The eleventh part of the paper is devoted to a detailed analysis of the results of the experiments of Davisson and his colleagues. It is shown that the results of these experiments are in good agreement with the theory of the structure of the atom. The twelfth part of the paper is devoted to a detailed analysis of the results of the experiments of Thomson and his colleagues. It is shown that the results of these experiments are in good agreement with the theory of the structure of the atom.

The thirteenth part of the paper is devoted to a detailed analysis of the results of the experiments of Millikan and his colleagues. It is shown that the results of these experiments are in good agreement with the theory of the structure of the atom. The fourteenth part of the paper is devoted to a detailed analysis of the results of the experiments of Barkla and his colleagues. It is shown that the results of these experiments are in good agreement with the theory of the structure of the atom.

The fifteenth part of the paper is devoted to a detailed analysis of the results of the experiments of Moseley and his colleagues. It is shown that the results of these experiments are in good agreement with the theory of the structure of the atom. The sixteenth part of the paper is devoted to a detailed analysis of the results of the experiments of Röntgen and his colleagues. It is shown that the results of these experiments are in good agreement with the theory of the structure of the atom.

H. L., Mr. & Mrs.; see above

The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the problem of the existence of solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β . It is shown that the system has solutions for all values of the parameters α and β if the function $f(x)$ is continuous and the function $g(x)$ is piecewise continuous. The second part of the paper is devoted to a detailed study of the properties of the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β . It is shown that the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) are unique and depend continuously on the parameters α and β . The third part of the paper is devoted to a study of the asymptotic properties of the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β . It is shown that the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) tend to zero as $x \rightarrow \infty$ for all values of the parameters α and β . The fourth part of the paper is devoted to a study of the stability properties of the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β . It is shown that the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) are stable for all values of the parameters α and β . The fifth part of the paper is devoted to a study of the bifurcation properties of the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β . It is shown that the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) undergo a bifurcation at $\alpha = 0$ and $\beta = 0$. The sixth part of the paper is devoted to a study of the numerical properties of the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β . It is shown that the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) can be computed numerically for all values of the parameters α and β . The seventh part of the paper is devoted to a study of the qualitative properties of the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β . It is shown that the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) have a number of interesting qualitative properties. The eighth part of the paper is devoted to a study of the topological properties of the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β . It is shown that the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) have a number of interesting topological properties. The ninth part of the paper is devoted to a study of the geometric properties of the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β . It is shown that the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) have a number of interesting geometric properties. The tenth part of the paper is devoted to a study of the algebraic properties of the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) for arbitrary values of the parameters α and β . It is shown that the solutions of the system of equations (1) and (2) have a number of interesting algebraic properties.
